

JR au Louvre by JR

Using photographic prints, French street artist JR camouflaged I. M. Pei's iconic glass pyramid at the Louvre Museum.

Blood Forest by Philippe Echaroux

To draw attention to the destruction of the Amazon.
A series that projects portraits of the indigenous Surui tribe members onto its trees.

#SafePassage by Ai Wei Wei

Known for his activist art, he covered the pillars of Berlin's Konzerthaus with over 14,000 bright orange life vests. Accompanied by a hanging lifeboat transcribed with the hashtag, the installation calls attention to the plight of refugees seeking asylum in Europe.

Peter Kogler's Optic Illusion Room Installations

Transforms the simple white walls and flat floors of galleries, typical transit stations, and ordinary lobbies into canvases for his optical illusions

The Rain Room at The Barbican, London

The room is fitted with 3D cameras that sense your location in the room, and automatically turn off the water valves above your head, allowing you to walk through the downpour without getting wet.

Leandro Erlich's Bâtiment

A life-sized building façade was constructed on the ground. A gigantic mirror angled at 45 degrees gives the illusory effect of people dangling from ledges and climbing up the walls.

Street art in Paris.
